The Boys' Reading Room.

Some of our rising generation have been enterprising enough to start a reading room for boys in imitation of what has been done by their elders. They have succeeded in amassing scrattling like 200 volumes, and have creditably firfed up a little room on Emma street as a library and meeting room. The walls are decorated with neatly written copies of their rules and regulations, lists of officers, &c., enclosed in tasteful frames, and they proudly point to everything in the room as or purchased from their own funds, in the afternoon. assisted in some cases by the generosity of friends.

In this room every evening the boys meet and carry on business or amusement, the affairs of the society or the instruction of its members, as their programme provides for. They have a regularly drawn up constituthou, and everything required to Alaska that the Chilians are carrying carry on the Society even to a small off everything of value from Lima balance in the treasurer's hands, although they have been but ten months in existence.

We feel cure that this Association and its objects need only to be widely known to have not only the sympathy, but the practical encouragement of our citizens by the donation of suitable books, &c. For this purpose we append the names of the officers who, we are sure, will be duly too happy to afford any further information: President, C. A. Brown, Vice-President, G. R. Carter; Secretary, W. F. Love; Treasurer, W. T. Monsarrat.

> VERY fine specimens of rubber trees are said to be found on these islands. It is further said that these trees will grow anywhere. It is not necessary to grow it on bottom lands: it will grow on the highest uplands, and close beside it is found the nut which is used to dress the rubber when extracted from the tree. In other countries the cultivation of the rubber tree is made an article of profit. Why not here when we have every natural advantage?

> THE Ministry stated that they stopped the immigration of Portuguese inaugurated by the late Cabinet, owing to the immense cost to the Government. As a matter of fact the telegraphic order to stop the immigration was sent before the cost was known, and also part of the cost of the women's passages per Hansa and Monarch was paid by their employers. In future, however the Government is to pay the whole cost of the passages for females. Where is the talk about expense now?

CERTAIN strictures having been made in our columns, on severity of sentences recently passed in committing young boys for 11 and 12 years to the Reformatory School for a tri fling offence, it has been pointed out to us that the Board of Education and Police or District Justices have the power, by law, to discharge or temporarily release any child committed to or admitted at any Indostrial and Reformatory School, either on application made to them or for good reasons shown to their satisfaction. And as the school bears an excellent character Justices have less hesitation in committing children to its care owing to their knowledge of the legal provisions alluded to above.
